ACTIV 500

Independence at the touch of a button

The ACTIV 500 is a simple to operate handset designed to enable independent living for people who may have physical, cognitive and/or sensory difficulties.

Facilitating a huge range of everyday tasks through infrared and radio control, the ACTIV 500 can be configured to operate over 2000 functions around the house, granting a new kind of freedom to users, whatever their disability.

Flexibility

Featuring a large, easy-press button control and two connections for other input switches, as well as speech prompts, the ACTIV 500 can be configured to give control of everyday functions including:

- Opening doors, windows and curtains
- Answering telephones and intercoms
- Operating TV, video, stereo and other electronic items via infrared

Despite the advanced technology and versatility of the ACTIV 500, control is extremely easy through one of a number of switches, ranging from a single button to those that allow operation through a slight movement of the head or any other repeatable movement.

Features:

- Large, clear, back lit screen
- Flexible control options
- Voice prompting for the visually impaired
- Easy to understand and operate
- Multi-lingual communications
- Radio and infrared controls
